I want to get the SubClasses (SubClass2 & SubClass3), since this is the type that needs to be deleted. Using item.SubClass1, (m,i) => m.Model)%> results in a NullReferenceException (which should not happen). A: You can use the GetMetadata call to get the type of the current model from the container: var type = container.ModelMetadata.GetMetadata.ModelType; Alternatively you could use ModelMetadataProvider.CurrentMetadataType: var type = ModelMetadataProviders.Current.GetMetadataType(typeof(AbstractClass), container); Then you can use GetType() to resolve to the implementation type: var instance = container.Resolve(type) as AbstractClass; if(instance!= null) var type = instance.GetType(); Here is a POCO example: public class ClassWithModelType { public object Model { get; set; } } public class AbstractModelType : IModelType { public Type ModelType { get; set;
